Bradley and Cathy Stubbs

“We’ve grown so much as people through our Amway business”

Once upon a time the thought of speaking in front of large groups was enough to make Cathy Stubbs physically ill. You would never know it today! This vivacious mum of three is a powerhouse of passion who is as confident talking to 50 people as she is chatting one-on-one about the Amway business she has built with her husband Bradley.

A long-time fan of the ARTISTRY products, Cathy has to laugh when she explains that she paid retail for the products for years. When she finally joined Amway Cathy loved the discounts on her favourite products but it was Bradley who first realised they could create a real asset with Amway.

“As a former pro surfer, Bradley is always up for a new adventure but it took me a while to understand that we could create an asset just by sharing information about the company and these products that I love so much!”

Once the penny dropped, the couple put their focus into building the business and have never looked back. The couple both agree they have been ‘blown away’ with the integrity and the ethics of Amway as a company.

Amway has provided Cathy with the skills and confidence she needs to help other people, which is by far her greatest passion. “This Amway business changes lives. We’ve seen people in our team move to becoming full time parents or improve their positions in their traditional jobs because of how much they’ve learned. Having such a supportive structure around them gives people real confidence and nothing gives us more satisfaction than watching others advance.”

Today, Bradley and Cathy are on course for Diamond and the couple were incredibly inspired by taking part in the recent trip to Dubai. It was an incredible adventure that has motivated the couple to expand their horizons even further.

“We absolutely love to travel, so our goal is on making Diamond at home and then setting our sights on expanding our business around the world.”
